Dear Hiring Manager,

I am writing to express my interest in an internship or junior position as a Software Developer. I have hands-on experience gained through self-initiated development projects, where I have designed and built complete applications from concept to implementation with a strong focus on functionality, structure, and usability.

Through my project-based work, I have developed frontend interfaces using HTML, CSS, and JavaScript, implemented backend logic and data handling using Python, and worked with SQL databases for data storage, queries, and basic database design. My work emphasizes clean structure, user flow, and problem-solving using a system-oriented approach.

In parallel, I am studying Data and Network Engineering at University West, which has given me a solid technical foundation in computer networks, operating systems, databases, and IT infrastructure. I also hold a Cisco CCNA 1 – Introduction to Networks certification, strengthening my understanding of networking fundamentals and system-level thinking.

While my development experience comes primarily from self-initiated projects rather than employment at a company, I am highly motivated, disciplined, and accustomed to working independently. I am eager to apply my skills in a professional environment, learn from experienced developers, and contribute to real-world software projects as part of a team.

I would welcome the opportunity to discuss how my skills, projects, and motivation could be an asset to your organization. My CV is enclosed for your reference.

Sincerely,
Shucayb Ahmed
